A View from the Summit

"Brooklyn Brewing Co"

Garrett Oliver, Brewmaster - The Brooklyn Brewery

At Brooklyn Brewery, we're really excited to be in the Atlanta area right at the time when people are finally able to enjoy everything that beer has to offer. The folks at Georgians for World Class Beer and all their allies deserve a really big round of applause. When I was in Atlanta for the Craft Brewers Conference a few years ago, I lamented the fact that I couldn't get some of my favorite American and European beers. Now with the end of the antiquated 6% cap, Georgians are opening themselves up to a whole new world of flavor. Not only will they be able to enjoy our flagship Brooklyn Lager, but they'll have our whole range of beers - and they can stop smuggling Brooklyn East India Pale Ale and Black Chocolate Stout into the state!

Brooklyn Brewery Beer School Coming Up!

Summits is excited to announce the arrival of Brooklyn Brewing Co to Atlanta! To share our excitement our next Beer Tasting is going to feature six of Brooklyn Brewing's finest offerings!

The cost is $15 for non-Passport Club members and $10 for Passport Club members. Sign up right away as space is very limited and the seats sell out quickly. The dates for Brooklyn Beer Tasting are as follows:

Monday	November 8, 2004	Snellville	6:30 pm
Tuesday	November 9, 2004	Sandy Springs	7:00 pm
Wednesday	November 10, 2004	Cumming	7:00 pm

Beer Spotlight : Brooklyn Brown Ale

Brooklyn Brown Ale, made exclusively with American ingredients, won Bronze medals at the Great American Beer Festival in the Strong Ale Category in 1991 and in the American Brown Ale Category in 1992. Brooklyn Brown uses pale, crystal, chocolate, and black malts to attain a complex creamy texture. It is more heavily hopped than its British forbears. British beer guru Michael Jackson calls Brooklyn Brown Ale "a complex brew that is closer to Newcastle than London, but bigger than either." He rates it *** in the Simon & Schuster Pocket Guide to Beer.

Cooking With Beer

Cincinnati Beer-Cheese Dip Recipe

Ingredients

- 3 rolls (6-oz each) sharp
- 1 cheese softened
- 1 1/2 oz roquefort or blue cheese
- 2 tbsp margarine softened
- 2 medium minced cloves garlic
- 1 medium onion
- 1 tsp worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 tsp tabasco
- 1 cup beer, heated and slightly cooled
- 1 round loaf rye bread

Directions

Mix cheese, margarine, onion, garlic, worcestershire and Tabasco with electric mixer, gradually add beer until good consistency for dipping bread chunks. Refrigerate.

Make serving bowl by hollowing out center rye bread, leaving a 1" thick shell. Tear bread into chunks for dipping.

Pour dip into the bread shell.

Servings: 1 serving

The Beer Connoisseur

SweetWater Festive Ale

Well, the temperature is dropping and the days are getting shorter. You know what that means don't you? It's time for our WINTER BREW...

A full-bodied, high-octane brew capped off with our use of cinnamon and mace. This beer will warm you all the way to your bones. Brewed only one day a year. We only bottle 5200 liters, 1200 12 oz. cases, and a handful of kegs, so get it while you can.

Industry News

Town squabbles over beer-toting sasquatch statue

VANCOUVER (CP) - While the people of Nelson, B.C. were busy arguing with U.S. veterans about proposals for a statue honouring American draft dodgers last month, 50 kilometres down Kootenay Lake, the town of Creston was having a similar battle.

There, the statue at issue is a three-metre bronze of a sasquatch carrying a case of beer. A case of made-in-B.C. Kokanee beer, to be precise.

A sasquatch is a mysterious, large ape-like creature reputed to roam the woods of North America. The legend is comparable to that of the Loch Ness monster or the abominable snowman.

"The town looked at it as an economic development," Mayor Joe Snopek said on Monday, adding it was decided the town could not proceed because, with a beer in its hand, the statue would be considered a business subsidy. Under the province's Municipal Act, that wouldn't be allowed, the mayor said.

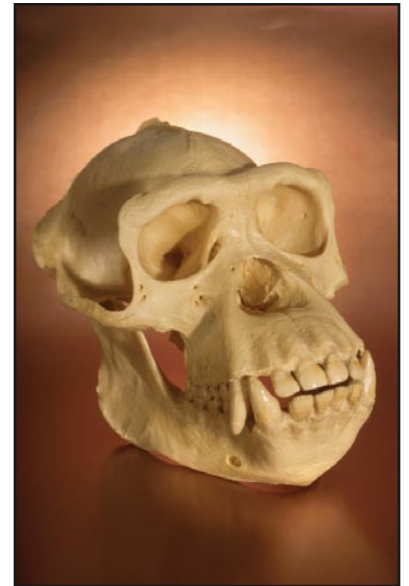

The town council had been ready to foot half the bill for the $40,000 bronze by Karl Lansing but after the ensuing uproar, a private contractor has agreed to foot the town's half, with the Columbia Brewing Co. picking up the rest.

Snopek said the council was looking at the statue as a tourist attraction like the giant Easter egg in Vegreville, Alta., or the humongous hockey stick in Duncan, B.C.

"One of the local guys who works in the grocery store wanted the world's largest shopping cart," Snopek said. "It got side-tracked," Snopek said. "(Some claimed) a sasquatch carrying a case of beer (would) turn all the kids into alcoholics."

Creston resident Laurel Ewashen did not see the sense in spending $20,000 on bronze, beer-toting sasquatch.

Did you know?

Why does the Guinness float on top of the other beer?

Quality always rises to the top" (Jon Binkley)
 Tom Otvos tomo@everyware.com offers the following hypothesis: I have sometimes wondered about why the Guinness stays on top of a layered Black and Tan myself. A friend of mine and I (both of us engineers) came to the conclusion that the SG of Guinness is not appreciably different from other beers, but that it is the higher viscosity of the liquid that prevents it from mixing. We assumed that it was this viscosity that gives Guinness its body, and the perception that it is a "heavier beer".
