A View from the Summit

Wild, Untamed, Excellent Beer

Chris Joseph - Manager - Cumming

I think that my greatest beer journey started off as not a quest for the great or an epoch beer experience at all. In 1996 I planned a trip to somewhere that I have always wanted to visit. I have seen pictures and heard stories of just how beautiful Montana and Wyoming are and had made up my mind to go and see it for myself.

I took a flight into Boseman, Montana, to start my trek. Little did I realize that it was the home of Spanish Peaks (Black Dog) brewery. I was looking through the hotel directory to find somewhere good to dine when I ran across the address. I have found that the better the best places for a meal in a strange town is among the local micro-breweries. They made quite possibly one of the best fried pork tenderloin sandwiches on the planet. Their pale ale and peaches and cream ale are extremely original. After dining and consuming a few brews I found a pub called the Fat pig which offered 35 draft beers. Boseman it turns out is a college town with a wealth of great beer drinkers - lucky me!

From Boseman I planned to drive south to and through the great Yellow Stone National Park. It was a seven hour drive through the park, as I was hindered by the first blizzard of the year. Finally I reached Jackson Hole. It was just my luck the home of Snake River Brewery. They had just tapped the first keg of their keg of Custer's Last Stand Pale Ale. They had many fine beers to offer. Not far from Jackson Hole is the Mangy Moose saloon. Moose Drool is a fine beer.

It has always amazed me that in the most wild and untamed area left in the United States, you can find incredibly well crafted beer.

Cooking With Beer!

Pepper Flank Steak with Chili Beer Sauce

- 1 T. olive oil
- 2 T. red bell pepper, minced
- 5-6 sun-dried tomatoes, snipped into strips
- 1 cup Canterbury Dark Mild Beer (or substitute)
- 2/3 cup chili sauce
- 1 T. grated horseradish
- 2-3 pounds flank steak, marinated six hours or overnight in Canterbury Dark Mild Beer (or substitute), then rubbed with cracked black pepper

In a stainless-steel saucepan (not iron, not aluminum) over medium heat, heat olive oil and sauté red pepper, onion, garlic and sun dried tomatoes. When tender, add brown beer and chili sauce, simmer five minutes. Stir in horseradish. In a heavy skillet over high heat, sear marinated pepper-rubbed steak to desired degree of doneness. Slice thin against the grain, on the diagonal. Serve on top of green salad tossed with cheese and light vinaigrette, with beer sauce on the side.

Beer Connoisseur

Ommegang 3 Philosophers

Cynics can't believe it, Epicures hail it a sensation, and Pythagoreans just can't add up what makes this luscious blend of rich malty ale and cherry lambic so delightful. It might be the flavor of dark chocolate and cherry cordials; it could be the way it acquires wisdom and grace in the cellar. Maybe it's a conundrum. What's your theory?

The essence of wonder is a unique and masterful blend of strong malty ale and authentic Belgian Kriek. Our philosophers deduce that this powerful marriage of cherries, roasted malts, and dark chocolate will only achieve more wisdom and coherence as it broods in the dark recesses of your cellar.

Did You Know?

The national anthem of the US, the "Star-Spangled Banner," was written to the tune of a drinking song.

The shallow champagne glass originated with Marie Antoinette. It was first formed from wax molds made of her breasts.

Beer was not sold in bottles until 1850; it was not sold in cans until 1935.
