Popcorn & a Movie...

You will have four chances to view the screening of "The American Brew" at Summits.

"Anheuser-Busch commissioned the movie as part of its Here's to Beer campaign. Flortenine Films/Sherman Pictures produced the movie, which is presented in a documentary style.

It ambitiously covers a lot of territory in 50 minutes, old and new, large breweries and small, beer production and appreciation.

The movie leans heavily on American beer history and heritage, and not surprisingly Prohibition plays a major role in the story. The movie is educational on several levels. As "The American Brew" points out, because of Prohibition an entire generation of Americans lost contact with beer and beer culture" (www.realbeer.com)

This will be a really fun way to learn more about beer and the venue can't be beat! Admission is a "retro" $ 0.10 ! Yes, that's 10-cents! We want you to have plenty left over to enjoy some american fare and american brew as you watch the movie.....

Spotlight on Beer

Red Hook Longhammer IPA

(Seattle, Washington) abv 6.5% Long Hammer embraces the IPA tradition of a strong hop profile while remaining approachable and easy to drink with smooth flavor and clean finish. It takes the traditional IPA brewing process one step further by dry-hopping, or adding hops at the very end of the brewing process. Using Cascade hops because they impart a wonderful hop aroma without an overpowering hop taste.

Cooking With Beer

Beef in Beer and Onions Recipe

INGREDIENTS:

- 2 pounds chuck or round beef roast, cut into 6 to 8 slices
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 5 to 6 med onions, peeled, thinly sliced into rings
- 1-1/2 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups dark beer
- 2 to 3 sprigs fresh thyme (or 1 teaspoon dried)
- 1 bay leaf, crumpled

PREPARATION:

Sprinkle both sides of the beef slices generously with salt and pepper. Heat a large heavy dutch oven over high heat until very hot. Add butter and olive oil and brown meat quickly on both sides. Remove beef and set aside.

Add sliced onions to the drippings. Lower heat and sweat onions until soft and lightly browned, stirring often. Add flour to onions. Cook, stirring constantly, until the flour is lightly browned.

Add beer to onion and flour roux, stirring until thickened. Add thyme and bay leaf. Return beef to the pot and cover pot. Cook over low heat about 2-1/2 hours, until beef is tender. Check often to be sure the beef is covered in liquid, adding more beer or water if necessary. Serve with buttered noodles or rice.

Yield: 6 to 8 servings

Beer Geek

From the Gilgamesh Epic, written in the 3rd millennium B.C., we learn that not only bread but also beer were very important. This epic is recognized as one of the first great works of world literature. Ancient oral sagas from the beginning of human history were recorded in writing for the first time. The Gilgamesh Epic describes the evolution from primitive man to "cultured man".

Enkidu, a shaggy, unkempt, almost bestial primitive man, who ate grass and could milk wild animals, wanted to test his strength against Gilgamesh, the demigod-like sovereign. Taking no chances, Gilgamesh sent a whore to Enkidu to learn of his strengths and weaknesses. Enkidu enjoyed a week with her, during which she taught him of civilization:

"(..)Enkidu knew not, what bread was nor how one ate it. He had also not learned to drink beer. The whore opened her mouth and spoke to Enkidu: `Eat the bread now, O Enkidu, as it belongs to life. Drink also beer, as it is the custom of the land. (..) " Enkidu drank seven cups of beer and his heart soared. In this condition he washed himself and became a human being.

The Sumarian empire collapsed during the 2nd millennium B.C., hopefully not because of their beer consumption!

Did You Know?

Who invented the lightbulb? No, it wasn't Thomas Edison. Lightbulbs were in use 50 years before he applied for the patent in 1879. In addition, Joseph Swan was awarded a lightbulb patent the previous year. (In 1883, the US Patent Office ruled that Edison's patent on the lightbulb were based on that of William Sawyer and were invalid.) Edison went on to make big bucks from the lightbulb but Swan sued Edison for infringement and won. As part of the settlement, Edison was forced to take Swan in as a partner but later bought him out in the company that was to become General Electric.

Quote of the Week

You can't be a real country unless you have a beer and an airline - it helps if you have some kind of a football team, or some nuclear weapons, but at the very least you need a beer. - Frank Zappa
